Must-See Hong Kong Art Shows

Looking for your next culture fix? Check out these new must-see Hong Kong art shows...

This month there are plenty of creative happenings to get stuck into (with some available to enjoy online), including experimental video works, living botanical installations and a group exhibition featuring four women photographers. Whether you're after a relaxing alternative weekend activity or an inspiring post-work pick-me-up, here's our pick of the newest Hong Kong art shows you won't want to miss. Happy viewing!

Editor's Note: Social distancing regulations remain in place in Hong Kong, so please make sure you follow the latest government advice when heading out. It's a good idea to check via the event provider's website/Facebook page to see if there are any last minute changes to these events and that you are aware of any restrictions they have put in place.

Women Gaze

Showcasing the works by four local and international female photographers, this group exhibition expresses the unique viewpoints of a new generation. The works by Hong Kong-born LAU Wai and Kayee C spotlight a very personal perspective on our society, questioning both self and social identities. Meanwhile, Anat Givon and Catherine Henriette, born in Israel and France respectively, find the inner beauty of Hong Kong and northeastern China.
